P. B. BREVAR

What Logan May.
Just before Gen. Logan left for Washington he said to a friend: "I hope every Republican who takes to the field will be successful in his administration. I have received letter after letter from Republicans all over the country urging me to exert every effort to have them retained. I shall not limit myself in that way. I would rather help to get the best man for the job than to see a man who is not fit for it at all. In fact it is strange to me that a Republican would ask a Democratic administration to keep him in office. No Republican would ask Cleveland to appoint him, if he was not of office. A petition for retention stands on the same principle. It is virtually asking a Democratic administration to keep a man in office who is not fit for it. If a Republican would ask for an office he should not ask to be retained in one. If he is holding an office, and is asked to remain on account of his faithful services, it is another thing. In that case he has a right to ask, and he is clearly wrong in asking to be retained."

As fast as the leading Republicans are turned out of office, they denounce the administration. They denounce the administration for turning out of office the men who were their opponents. They denounce the administration for turning out of office the men who were their opponents. They denounce the administration for turning out of office the men who were their opponents.

PLAGUED BY RAIN.
The cholera is raging in a great many towns throughout Spain, and consternation and death stalk abroad over that land. In some towns the cholera is so prevalent that it is increased by insurrection and resistance to the efforts of the government to enforce sanitary laws. The young king resolved to visit in person the stricken towns, and he proceeded to visit in person the stricken towns, and he proceeded to visit in person the stricken towns.

The king ordered a new ministry to organize the Government, but the new ministry refused to do so. The king was finally persuaded to force his visit. The epidemic is prevailing violently in about one hundred towns.

THE PATERNAL STANDARD.
The paternal standard is discredited by the action of the Democratic State Committee in declaring Col. J. V. Taylor, the nominee of the party for State Treasurer. The action of the committee was an act of unbecoming authority, but there being but one candidate, its action was justifiable and proper. A candidate, under the circumstances, would be useless and expensive.
